Reflection

In this week I've learned about the bootstrap, bootstrap is like pre-made website parts where we can get some part of it to use instead of creating everything by myself. I've learned that we can put many images and use a navigation to make it more presentable there are many format on how you want it to be. The challenges I've encountered in this week is about the naming because once you put a different name or forget a one letter it won't be applied and won't reflect on your web page. Second about making the folder for the images I get lost in making its folder because I thought it has a individual folder that's why when I'm putting the image it doesn't appear. I've solved it by replaying the demo and as I've check it the names of those images should be the same on what I will put on the code, exactly what is on the folder name, about the images it should have the main folder inside it was the images I've downloaded. My improvement I got to learn about bootstrap I can use it so that I wont create everything by myself.
